Robert Feldman began playing the violin as soon as he left the crib where his father placed it. He has been playing one way or another, (probably more the latter) ... ever since ...

Navroz J. Karkaria (Pittsburgh, PA) came to the U.S.A. from India in 1960 to pursue his Master's degree in Civil Engineering from Carnegie Tech, (now known as Carnegie Mellon University), in Pittsburgh, PA. He is grateful to Ms. Kloss for allowing him to get a glimpse (for the past 16 years), into Mr. Heifetz, one of his two Gods.

Egon de Mattos (Anapolis,GO, BRAZIL), was invited to study with Sidney Harth at Carnegie Mellon University in 2001 as part of the "Performance Residency Program". Continuing his studies with Mr. Harth, he received the Masters Degree in Violin Performance in 2005 at Duquesne University. As winner of the Concerto competition he performed the Prokofiev Concerto #2 with his teacher conducting. He is presently completing his Artist Diploma as a violist with Marylene Gingras Roy.

Madeline Pilato (New London, CT) studies violin with Yaroslav Tereschenko and Stan Renard, and piano with Melinda Fields. For school year 2010-2011 she received a scholarship from Jorgensen Outreach for Youth to pursue musical study. This is her second year attending the "JHSymposium of Individual Style". Madeline teaches violin and piano at the Killingly School of Music in Danielson, CT.

David Rubin (Appleton, WI), currently studies at Lawrence University with Professor Wen-Lei Gu. Co-concertmaster of the Lawrence Symphony Orchestra and member of the Fox Valley Symphony Orchestra, David's numerous interests include musicology, pedagogy, vegetarian cooking and co-operative living. In the fall, he will study abroad at the Conservatorium van Amsterdam for one semester, and then return home to complete his undergraduate degree. In the meantime, he is happy to be back at "JHSymposium", encountering new sounds and ideas.

Noah Shatner (New London, CT), pianist and composer, is ten years old and attends the Solomon Schechter Academy. Particularly passionate about Baroque music, his opus #1, a Baroque dance-suite was performed in February at Orchestra New England's "Baroquefest" in New Haven. Noah wishes to thank Ms. Kloss for her encouragement and the opportunity to participate in the "JHSymposium".

Derrick Wu, award-winning violinist and pianist, will begin his 4th year of study at Northwestern University where his majors are Biology and Violin performance. A former pupil of Ms. Kloss, he currently studies with Gerardo Ribeiro.

Jeremy Wu (Carmel, IN.) will be a junior at Park Tudor School in Indianapolis. Both a violinist, (8 years of study) and pianist, (10 years of study), he is a violin pupil of Noelle Tretick-Gosling. He serves as a leading member of the New World Youth Symphony Orchestra and in 2011 was a prize winner of Matinee Musicale.

Emily Uematsu (Tenafly, NJ.) has just completed her freshman year at Chapman University in Orange, CA, where she studies with William Fitzpatrick. She has been awarded a scholarship to participate in a summer music festival in Poland this July. This is her 10th year at the "JHSymposium".
